Lāhainā schools are celebrating a successful art auction fundraiser that raised $14,000 for the four schools affected by the wildfires in August. The auction featured artworks from Lāhaināluna students, a Lāhaināluna teacher and other local professional artists. The auction was organized by science teacher Judd Levy and was a collaboration between art galleries on Maui and Oahu, The Public Schools of Hawaii Foundation, and the Hawaii Department of Education. The culmination of the auction took place at a live event at Island Art Galleries in Waikiki, where seven Lāhaināluna art students had the opportunity to showcase their talents and see their creations being appreciated by the audience. Congratulations to all the artists and supporters who made this event possible!
